Check products labeling to confirm all labeling is correct and appropriate.

Labels must include the following information:

- The serving size. State law limits products to 5mg total THC per serving and 50mg THC per package.
 - If an edible cannabinoid is intended for more than a single use, each serving must be indicated by scoring, wrapping, or other indicator of individual serving size.
- A full list of ingredients, including identification of any major food allergens declared by name.
- The following statement “Keep the product out of reach of children.”
- A statement stating that the “product does not claim to diagnose, treat, cure, or prevent any disease and has not been evaluated or approved by the United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) unless the product has been so approved.”

The label information below may be provided on an outer package or may be provided through the use of a small scannable barcode or matrix that links to a page on the manufacturer’s website and contains all the required information.

- The name, location, contact phone number, and website of the manufacturer of the product.
- The name and address of the independent, accredited laboratory used by the manufacturer to test the product.
- An accurate statement of the amount or percentage of cannabinoids found in each unit of the product meant to be consumed.

LAW ENFORCEMENT HEMP-DERIVED THC INSPECTION CHECKLIST

Edible products must NOT include:

- The likeness or contain cartoon-like characteristics of a real or fictional person, animal, or fruit that appeals to children.
 - Imitations of any brand of products primarily consumed by or marketed to children.
 - Any packaging that in a way resembles the trademarked, characteristic, or product-specialized packaging of any commercially available food product.
 - Any statement, artwork, or design that could reasonably mislead any person to believe that the package contains anything other than an edible cannabinoid product.
 - Any claim that the product may be used or is effective for the prevention, treatment, or cure of a disease or that may be used to alter the structure or function of human or animal bodies, unless that claim has been approved by the FDA.
- If possible, view a sales transaction to confirm that the store is properly verifying age on all transactions. If it is not possible to view a transaction confirm the process the store uses to verify no THC sales are to anyone under 21.
- Review product packaging. An edible cannabinoid product must be prepackaged in packaging or a container that is tamper-evident, and opaque at the final point of sale to a customer. The edible cannabinoid packaging is required to be child resistant. If you suspect the packaging is not child resistant, you may have to contact the manufacturer and request a Child Resistant Certificate. The requirement that packaging be child-resistant does not apply to an edible cannabinoid product that is intended to be consumed as a beverage and which contains no more than a trace amount of any tetrahydrocannabinol.
- Check products for cannabinoids that are not allowed. No other substance extracted or otherwise derived from hemp may be sold for human consumption if it is intended for health benefit or intoxication. An example of a hemp derived compound that is not allowed is HHC (hexahydrocannabinol) and its derivatives. Allowable substances include all hemp-derived THC and CBD.
- Check for product forms that are not allowed. Only hemp-derived THC edibles and beverages are allowed under state law. Other product forms are not. Examples of unallowed THC products include flower, pre-rolls, tinctures, moonrocks, or topicals.
